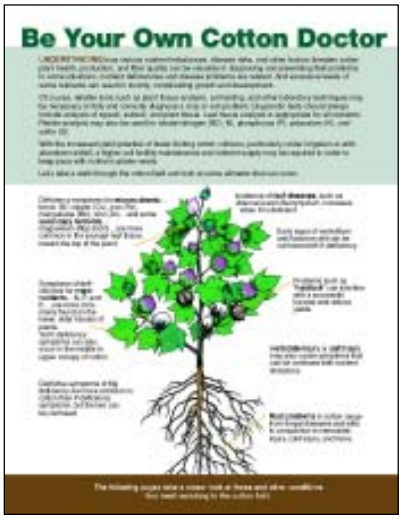
Be Your Own Cotton Doctor



Understanding how various nutrient imbalances, disease risks, and other factors threaten cotton plant health, production, and fiber quality can be valuable in diagnosing and preventing field problems. Be Your Own Cotton Doctor is a new publication from the Potash & Phosphate Institute (PPI) to help growers and others in becoming more familiar with symptoms of nutrient deficiencies, toxicities, diseases, and other disorders in cotton production. While it does not substitute for diagnostic tools such as plant tissue analysis and soil testing, this guide can be useful in distinguishing and identifying various field problems. It features 40 color illustrations.

The new, full color, 8-page, 8½ x 11- in. publication is patterned after the classic Be Your Own Corn Doctor, which has been widely used for many years.

Be Your Own Cotton Doctor is available for 50 cents (US$0.50) per copy, plus shipping/handling. Discounts are extended on quantity orders.
